

NEW KNOWLEDGE

VOL. 4 NO. 3

Nature's computer—the human brain

Above: Nerve cells in the brain; the giant cells lying in a line serve as the 'switching centre'. Below: The basic 'unit of thought'—a single nerve cell. (Colour is produced by staining the slide.)

